

Overview – We are a research and asset management firm in West Palm Beach, FL. Our strategy, the Maycrest Tactical Equity Strategy¹) (MT Strategy), is a long-bias equity strategy. We employ a tactical approach to investing in the equity market and vary our equity exposure based primarily on macroeconomic risk. That is, in weak economic conditions we reduce our long exposure to equities to limit drawdowns that are typically experienced in such periods. Through the implementation of inverse ETFs, we have a strategy in place that is designed to generate profits in a bear market. The firm uses its proprietary BearCasting[®] Model for active risk management and to support its investment decisions.

Performance Since Inception as Compared to the S&P 500 TR Index – The performance of the MT Strategy (net of management and performance fees) and the SPDR S&P 500 ETF (“SPY”), which tracks the returns of the S&P 500 Total Return (TR) Index, are depicted in the table and graph below. Results for the Maycrest Tactical Equity Strategy reflect the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings.
